

Donovan Clark <clarkdonovan85@gmail.com>

RE: Leaving Option

1 message

Mathews, Tirzah <TMathews@washoecounty.gov>
To: Donovan Clark <clarkdonovan85@gmail.com>

3 July 2024 at 07:58

In the beginning I reviewed with you that one options was for you and Megan to try to reunify separately since the focus was more on Megan's establishment of mental health services than your engagement with services. I believed that this option may have fast-tracked you getting the kids if you were to find a place to reunify with them and maintain their basic needs.

However, now that all these other issues have come to the surface, the focus of the Agency is to get the girls to build a trusting rapport with their individual therapists so that the girls feel that they can fully disclose any concerns or issues to their therapists. Now, I do not believe that you leaving will fast track them coming home. Rather, I now believe that it may disrupt things more than anything because of all the hard work you and Megan have put into your relationship and building stability for each other.

That is my assessment at this point of the case, but I have not spoken yet to Christine about things. Tuesdays and Wednesdays we are typically in court all day.

From: Donovan Clark <clarkdonovan85@gmail.com>
Sent: Tuesday, July 2, 2024 6:31 PM
To: Mathews, Tirzah <TMathews@washoecounty.gov>
Subject: Leaving Option

Would the kids come home if i left state. The dyamics of our relationship is the hold up me moving gets me out of the picture and the kids are no longer paying for my mistakes but will it get them home?